

ABSTRACT

During debug operations in one embodiment of a trusted subsystem, passwords may be used to enable and disable access to selected areas, and to make access by different
5 entities mutually exclusive. In another embodiment, programmable units may be used to define what the selected areas of access are for debug operations.